MONDAY AVENING, NOV. 1.

NARCOTISM FROM NUTMEGS. - The fact that nutmegs have strong percotic properties has long been knowe; but they are in such common use as a favorite condiment used in small quantities that their dangerous nature, when taken in large quantity, is apt to be over looked and forgotten, even by those who are aware of their tendency. A physician reports a case where a lady patient during his absence was induced by her old nurse to take nutmeg tea. One and a half nutmegs were used in making the ten, and the patient drank the whole of the dicoction during the day. About ten o'clock at night she began to be drowsy, and by four o'clock the next moroing was in a profound stupor. At ten o'clock in the morning the narcotic effects of the nutmeg began to pass off and by 4 o'clock p. m. she had prety well recovered. The symtoms were about the same as those produced by opium, and the remedies given for them were ab ut the same. Nu:meg in the quantity of two or three drachme, has been known to produce both stupor and delirium, and dancerous and fatal consequinors are said to have followed to free use to India. Mac, which is the outside covering of the putmer, neserves seemingly the same proper ties .- London Medical Record.
